When a Deacon Broke Loose

By M. CLAD
Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press

There were only 600 inhabitants in the village of Glendale when the first meeting house, as they still call it in the country, was erected. Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and Adventists went in together to the building and used it alternately. As the village grew the different denominations built churches for themselves, and finally the old church was left to one. This happened to be the poorest one in the place, and it was in a wretched state of repair. As a matter of fact, the old meeting house was little better than a barracks.

The deacon was the financial man of the church, but it was years and years before he saw his way clear for the erection of a new edifice. Several freight cars loaded with cement got smashed up in the suburbs of the town, and the deacon was told to help him self.

He got wagon loads of the stuff, for that new meeting house was to be a concrete one. The concrete industry was then in its infancy, but Deacon Pogram had found a man to put the matter through and guarantee a satisfactory job.

A rain struck down, and things were changed. He knew all about the cement business and was ready to take off his coat and carry the job through if any family would board him gratis in return. Deacon Pogram jumped at the chance. Urish was told to eat all he could and go to the head of the class and manage things. He took hold as if he had doubled in cement all his life.

Urish hustled. He made everybody else hustle. If any one lagged he was right on the spot to say:

"Now, then, don't do no loafing on the Lord. This is his job, and he expects things to move lively."

We all know now, though few knew at that time, that there are several grades of cement and that cement workers do not shovel sand and cement together in a haphazard way. There must be due proportions, according to the work to be done. Urish simply went ahead and shoveled. Providence stood back of him with dry weather until the walls were ready for the roof, and then she got tired of a good thing. There were those who said the blocks were too soft and others who thought they could see bulges in the walls and still others who predicted that two hours' rain would spoil everything, but to all such Deacon Pogram said:

"Didn't the floods rage and the lumber come down?"

"Yes."

"Didn't we discover the sand pit in the nick of time?"

"Yes."

"Didn't Brother Higgs see the error of his ways just when we were wondering what we should do for the bricks?"

"He did."

"And didn't Providence ordain that those freight cars should be smashed up and the cement scattered over an acre of ground?"

"It looks like it."

"And then came Uriah Kingston. At the crossroads he might have turned to the left and gone to Liverpool, but Providence guided him to the right and to us."

"But it may rain, and if it does—"

"It will not rain for a month to come. It's Providence that permits it to."

The deacon talked that way and believed what he talked, and Uriah talked and believed still stronger. And then the rain descended. It set in at dark one day and came down in a way to soak things. Just at daylight next morning, with the rain still coming down, the two men crept forth to see how it fared with the enterprise. There were no walls left. In place of them was a small lake of mud. Every last block of concrete had melted in the rain. The deacon and Uriah stood and gazed for five long minutes like men stupefied.

And then Deacon Pogram broke loose. It was years ago, but they still date things from that day. He whooped. He threw down his hat and jumped on it. He knocked Uriah down and jumped on him. As people came out to see what the trouble was he threw them into the lake of mud and whooped again. He went home and kicked his dog and cuffed his wife's ears, and then he ran amuck through the streets and tore gates off their hinges and smashed sidewalks. Men ran and women fled, and it took two lightening bolts and a chicken butter to the head to stop him. He continued to whoop until his voice gave out, and for three days he was allowed to run his head against the wall and the lake of mud to his heart's content. The deacon's plan for erecting a new church had failed. He had given his hand on the ground and he had no money to build.

NO ROUGH-HOUSE AT THE POLLS

The polling places scattered throughout the city will be watched by a picked squad of officers, delegated by Sheriff Jarrett, whose business it will be to put down any attempt at disorder that may arise at the voting booths or within the prescribed limits of the places selected for casting the vote.

Sheriff Jarrett issued an order this morning designating the necessary men to preserve order throughout the day.

A number of men will be detailed at the central station there to be ready to take to the police wagon or one of the motor cars which will be at the call of any precinct in the city.

Chief of Detectives McDuffie, force left, and the regular "uptairs" force will make a tour of the precinct voting places while a number of mounted officers will also take in some of the country districts.

"We propose to keep order at the polling places to the best of our ability with the limited force at our command," declared Sheriff Jarrett this morning. "We don't intend to stand for any rough house."

DEFEAT THE LOCALS

INTER-ISLAND BOWLING LEAGUE.

	P.	W.	L.	Pct.
Maui	6	5	1	.833
Kauai	6	3	3	.500
Oahu	6	2	4	.333
Kamoa	6	2	4	.333

This morning's mail brought the scores of the Kauai team for the last inter-island match bowled against the Kamoa team of this city, and comparison of the totals with those shown on the "W" sheets developed the fact that the Garden Islanders had annexed two out of three games. This puts both the Oahu teams in the ruck, with Maui and Kauai first and second.

For the winners Wolters had high score, 212, and Crawford and Wolters tied for high average, 177.

For the losers Rietow had both high score, 240, and average, 184.

Following is the individual bowling of the two teams:

	KAUAI		KAMOA
Wolters	212	165	154
Kohlmann	141	167	136
Crawford	158	137	132
Maser	203	146	183
Winter	158	170	135
	872	785	742
Gear	181	148	143
Scott	155	154	138
Dyson	161	155	148
Wisdom	186	114	141
Rietow	172	142	240
	855	713	810

The 240 bowled by Rietow for the Kamoa team is a local record for match games. The record last year was made by Wisdom, who bowled 236.

MAUI NOTES

WAILUKU, Maui, Nov. 2.—The Church of the Good Shepherd in Wailuku has received a handsome donation of $500 toward the organ and for the church. Quite an amount is already collected and on deposit for the pipe organ, so that when this substantial gift just received is added, it may be possible for the church to place the organ in a few months. When the new church was erected, ample space was left for the erection of the organ. Rev. Wm. S. Short, the rector, had word of the gift last evening.

The library committee of the Maui Library Association met this week and ordered twenty-four of the latest books. Another large order will be placed in a few days, as soon as the memberships from the various Maui circles are made up. The Maui Library has been in existence less than a year now, but the number of books drawn each week is large. Often as many as fifteen people use the library reading rooms at one time. The magazines are free to all readers. Transients and people stopping on the island for a short time have special consideration from the library.

The Haku extension of the Kahului railroad is so far along that the company hopes to run trains in a few days into Hanalei. Some of the heavy iron work on the new Maui bridge is in position. The Maui people living in this portion of the island are much pleased over the prospect of a good railway service into the Haku region. The regular passenger trains seem to be speeding up some what in order to see how rapidly the time can be made between stations. The indications are that the schedule will be considerably shortened.

The lands of the extensive Everett estate in Wailuku are being cleared by the Wailuku Sugar Company for planting in the near future. It is understood that some land in Wailuku that belonged to the estate will go with the Wailuku property.

Wm. H. Engle, the popular business manager of the Alexander Hoag Gymnasium, returns to Wailuku this

READY TO LET CONTRACT FOR DRYDOCK EXTENSION

Within a short time the contract for extending the Pearl Harbor drydock an additional 200 feet on the outside end will be ready for the signatures of the San Francisco Bridge Co. and the Hawaiian Dredging Co., the contractors now engaged in completing the original drydock for the Navy Department.

Some time ago a board of naval officers fixed the compensation for the increased work, this clause being in the original contract, which contemplated a possible extension before the dock was finished.

Other work at Pearl Harbor is progressing rapidly, the seven industrial buildings being all in place, while several other buildings are well under way.

ADVANCES IN EWA, OAHU AND PINEAPPLE

Stocks opened the week strong. There was more variety and volume than for one day for some time past. Ewa advanced three-eighths and Oahu one-quarter point, and there was no decline in any sugar stock. Pineapple jumped up another half point. There is a prevalent feeling that something will be doing in Pineapple about the end of the year. Sales between boards were 10 and 5 of Oahu at 26; 40 Pioneer at 30.50; 20 and 10 Waialua at 110.

On the board 5 an 5 H. C. & S. Co. gold at 40; 20 McBryde at 5.50; 30 Pioneer at 30.50; 15 Waialua at 110; 5 and 5 Ewa at 28.50; 10 Hawaiian Pineapple at 45.50, and 60 Oahu in five unequal lots at 26.25.
